

Panama Summit Golf & Resort

Transformation of this 1930's era golf course (161 acres, 65 hectares) into a full-scale destination resort was the goal of this project. A redesigned 18-hole course was created through a comprehensive reshaping of the land around the new mixed use Conference Center anchored by the Village Center/Spa and Radisson Hotel (see below). The primary impetus for the project was a renewed opportunity to attract cruise ship tourists soon to be embarking from the new Panama port facility.

McKinney & Company provided full-service land planning, golf course design, civil engineering and on-site construction management to establish an overall conceptual master plan. McKinney also provided design services for the storm water and irrigation management ponds and developed in conjunction with Owner, the amenity package that lead to complete golf course renovation and construction of supporting infrastructure for a high-end resort.
